7.1.1. Topics on Gender & Feminism in the CBCS Syllabus:

Gender and feminism topics are integrated into the curriculum of humanities and social sciences departments to promote gender sensitization among students. Seven departments offer courses on gender-related issues, including general electives, honors, and post-graduate programs. Post-graduate departments such as Bengali, cover gender-related topics. Seven departments, including Bengali, Sociology, Political Science, and English, Philosophy, Geography, History incorporate gender issues into their Hons./GE papers. These topics cover a wide range, including feminism studies, gender geography, literature by women authors, gender inequalities, women's empowerment policies, and feminist theories. The courses aim to highlight the role of gender ideologies in various aspects such as the workplace, politics, and addressing gender-based violence. They also emphasize feminist theories and the reservation of women in grassroots democracy within the Indian context.
